

Dick Raaijmakers and Klaas de Vries in the winter edition of Dag in de Branding on 13 December

Info Published on: November 10, 2014

Summary In the dark December days between Sinterklaas and Christmas you can once again treat yourself to the surprising sounds of new music in the Dag in de Branding Festival. Work by composer Dick Raaijmakers also plays a pivotal role in this edition.

Details A great deal of Raaijmakers' compositions form a commentary on work by other composers – sometimes implicitly for those in the know, but more often than not explicitly, such as in Der Fall Leiermann. This piece confers a leading role on the hurdy-gurdy man from Schubert's famous song cycle Winterreise (Winter Journey). This cycle, from 1827, is every bit as fascinating today as it was then, and not only challenges singers, but also gives composers food for thought. So too Klaas de Vries, who, together with film-maker Kees Hin, realised a 'composed interpretation' of Schubert's piece. And that Schubert's famous ballad Erlkönig has also found universal resonance is demonstrated by the ballad by Raaijmakers, which literally may be called music of the spheres: an 'electronic' Erlkönig created from fragments of sound that Raaijmakers plucked out of the ether. Both programmes take place in Korzo theatre.

The evening programme begins in the Dr Anton Philipszaal, where the Royal Conservatory's Symphony Orchestra will perform, among other things, the violin concerto by Alban Berg, featuring as soloist the young virtuoso Shin Sihan. The jury that awarded Shin the Anton Kersjes violin scholarship last year called him '... an exceptionally talented violinist. His convincing and intelligent performance makes you think you are listening to an experienced soloist, whereas in fact he is still in the early days of his musical studies.'

We round off the evening in the beautiful Kloosterkerk in The Hague, with the mystical Honderd nachten, honderd jaren (A hundred nights, a hundred years) by Klaas de Vries. It is about love that drives one mad, beauty that is unattainable, cherished dreams and lost illusions, being young and growing old and the eternal mystery of time, life and death. 'With a subtle feeling for colour and timing, Klaas de Vries frees you from time and space. He links the sound of an old organ with that of an electric guitar and lets the ancient sounds of the pan pipes merge with drums and priest-like male singing.' (Quote from Volkskrant newspaper.)

About Dag in de Branding

Dag in de Branding, het Haagse festival voor nieuwe muziek, is een initiatief van het Platform voor Nieuwe Muziek, een convenant van de Johan Wagenaar Stichting, Koninklijk Conservatorium, Korzo theater, Nutshuis, Paard van Troje, Residentie Orkest, Dr Anton Philipszaal en Theater aan het Spui.

Met vier festival-edities per jaar wil Dag in de Branding de uitstraling en het profiel van de hedendaagse muziek in Den Haag versterken. Door de breedte van het aanbod aan nieuwe muziek te vergroten en de nieuwe muziek op een structurele wijze hoorbaar te maken in het cultuuraanbod van Den Haag. Tevens door minstens één keer per jaar een groot project te initiëren, dat normaliter buiten de horizon van de afzonderlijke partners zou liggen.
