

SoundCloud Offers Creators More Control with Scheduled Releases

Wednesday March 28, 2018, New York, NY -- SoundCloud today announced the launch of scheduled releases, offering creators more control and convenience with the ability to set a specific date and time to publicly release their newest track.

Once a track is scheduled, it releases at its designated time to the top of a creator's profile and listeners' streams for fans to easily view and listen. Creators can take advantage of scheduled releases to time their content to hit when they want it to:

Have a weekly podcast that goes out at a specific date and time each week?

Share episodes at recurring, set dates and times so listeners get their favorite podcast delivered on time, every time.

Want to make your mix available as soon as you finish your set?

Schedule it so you can spend more time connecting with fans after the show.

On tour and traveling across time zones?

Keep tracks perfectly timed for release across time zones and tour dates.

The scheduled releases feature is available to Pro Unlimited subscribers beginning today on the web. To learn more about Pro Unlimited, visit soundcloud.com/pro.
