Envato reinforces its commitment to creative students

Student designers are another step closer to getting their creative projects done, with the release today of a new student price on Envato Elements.

Verified students will save 30% on either monthly or yearly subscription plans, giving them access to a library of more than one million digital assets and thousands of creative courses and tutorials for as low as $11.50 USD a month.

One of the world's most popular creative subscription services, Envato Elements provides subscribers with unlimited downloads of a wide variety of creative files, from graphic and presentation templates, stock photos and fonts, through to video templates, stock video, music and sound effects and even WordPress themes.

Envato's Customer Group General Manager David Brice said the offering builds on the company's established tradition in design education.

"We have more than five million students completing design or creative tutorials and courses each and every month through our online learning platform Tuts+, with more than half a billion total learners since we began."

"We know what creative students need to get their work done, whether its a school project, a side-hustle or even their first job."

"One of our core missions as a business is helping creatives from all walks of life get their creative projects done faster, and we believe that in helping our global community of creative students get easier access to high-quality assets, we're taking a big step forward in delivering on this promise," concluded Brice.
