Tarah Who? Featuring YUR MUM Makes A Bold Statement To The Music Industry In Latest Track, "Push Me."

(Los Angeles, CA) December 17th, 2021 – Tarah Who?'s latest track featuring YUR MUM, "Push Me," is available on major platforms. Tarah Who? is known for their unorthodox and non-conformist tone, and "Push Me" is their latest to communicate that message. Inspired by the 2020 Grammy's, Tarah realized that the entire rock category and performances were absent on live TV. Feeling that a female rock band is currently overlooked in the music industry, Tarah set out to write a song with YUR MUM that is meaningful to both bands but also all of the hard-working independent musicians trying to get attention and the honor of winning a Grammy award.

Influenced by the journey of independent artists, women in rock music, and musicians who struggle to keep their passion going despite obstacles, Tarah Who? set out on a journey that is different from those who have made it. Tarah states, "Our definition of success is on a different level that we cannot compare but we are not gratified publicly." Instead, believing that victory is that the band is doing what they love, playing music they wrote, and has fans that love them for their originality, Tarah Who? looks forward to the day that one of the independent rock bands or female-fronted rock bands can make it to the Grammys.

"Push Me" is a track that sheds light on the lack of representation of rock bands, especially female-fronted rock bands. While listening to podcasts and watching music documentaries, Tarah was shocked and disappointed to hear artists in the rock genre talk about the changes in the current music industry. Aware of the atrocities, "Push Me" uses the power of sound and raw lyrics to stand up for rock artists and female-fronted rock bands. The band's explosive and original sound blended with vocals that serve as a plea and statement to the music industry, Tarah Who?'s latest track is a catalyst for exposing bias and the lack of rock representation in the music industry.
