

Tiqets wins Ticketing Business of the Year Award 2018

Last night at Old Trafford Stadium in Manchester, global leaders in the ticketing business got together to "recognize achievement, innovation and leadership in the world of ticketing." Tiqets is incredibly proud to have been crowned Ticketing Business of the Year – especially against some formidable competition.

Last night in Manchester, our Chief Supply Officer Maarten Raaijmakers, and Technical Project Manager Menno Bieringa were on hand to receive the award for Ticketing Business of the Year. Hundreds of nominations were whittled down to create the shortlist, judged by an independent panel of industry figures. The organizers describe this award as 'The big one'!

In the last year, Tiqets made incredible strides. And with big growth in sales, supply, app users, and some strong development of our business in a number of areas. We're continuing that work and doubling our business every single year.

Tiqets CSO Maarten Raaijmakers: "We were happy to be in such great company among the nominees. But to actually win Ticketing Business of the Year is a big honor. The work we do is its own reward, but it's always nice to earn some recognition among peers in the industry."

Shortlisted nominees for the Ticketing Business of the Year Award:

- London Theatre Direct (UK)
- SeatGeek Enterprise (USA)
- SecuTix (Switzerland)
- Tiqets (The Netherlands)
- Etix (USA)

About TheTicketingBusiness Awards

TheTicketingBusiness Awards recognise leadership, innovation and achievement in the application of ticketing across sports, performing arts, music, cinema, live entertainment and visitor attractions. The Awards aim to increase the standards and best practice of ticketing, drive awareness and adoption of future ticketing technology, and improve the customer experience for ticket-buyers across all sectors.
