Legacy Senior Living Promotes Allison Haun to Director of Human Resources

20-year HR veteran has proven track record in team member development and organizational support

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (Feb. 17, 2021) – Following a successful tour as the human resources coordinator, Allison Haun has been promoted to Director of Human Resources at Legacy Senior Living, a strategic move the company believes will benefit its team members through its continued growth in 2021 and beyond.

Haun joined the Legacy Senior Living family in August of 2019 as a human resources coordinator with almost two decades of experience in similar roles, a level of experience that proved essential throughout the unique challenges of 2020.

In this expanded role, Haun will deepen her involvement in team member development, organizational support, and advising the senior leadership team in matters related to human resources.

“Allison has proven beyond measure that her skills and passion are an essential asset to all our team members,” said Barry Ray, Founder and CEO at Legacy Senior Living. “Her experience has served us well as our team has grown, and we’re excited about the impact she’ll have in this expanded role,” he added.

Haun, who has a degree in graphic design from Chowan University, sought a career in the senior living industry, inspired by her relationship with her grandmother.

“Our team puts their heart and soul into serving our residents, so it’s truly an honor to be able to serve them,” said Haun. “I’m extremely grateful to take the next step forward in my journey with Legacy Senior Living,” she added.

A Charlotte, N.C., native, Haun now makes her home in Cleveland with her husband, David, and their two daughters.
