LemonadeLXP Launches AI-Based Course Authoring Tool

Ottawa, ON, December 14 2021 — LemonadeLXP, the digital adoption and learning experience platform for financial institutions, has launched an artificial intelligence (AI) course authoring tool to help customers create better learning modules faster.

To use the new AI feature, admins paste text from source material into the tool. Then, through trained natural language processing, LemonadeLXP identifies the salient points and generates potential questions — complete with correct answers. Lastly, the admin selects the questions that they would like to retain and authors the counterpart “false” answers.

“This is a really exciting update for our platform,” said John Findlay, CEO of LemonadeLXP. “Our authoring tools are already the fastest in the world and this speeds things up even more. I was amazed when I tested the engine myself. Where I could dream up three or four ways to create content about a salient piece of information, the robot crushed me! It suggested as many as ten to fifteen variations that I would never have dreamt up. I can’t wait to see how much this helps our clients accelerate the creation of new learning content.”
