

LemonadeLXP Now Speaks Spanish

Financial institutions can now train Spanish-speaking employees in Spanish, and turn it on with a single click.

OTTAWA, Ontario. August 10, 2026. LemonadeLXP, the AI-powered learning and knowledge platform purpose-built for financial institutions, today announced that its platform is now fully localized for Spanish.

For a lot of FIs, the workforce isn't monolingual. But their training has been. So Spanish-speaking employees, from the frontline to the back office, have been learning in a language that isn't their first. That ends today.

Now Spanish-speaking staff members can learn in Spanish. The whole modern learning experience, a mix of interactive module types and support in the flow of work, all delivered in the language they think in.

And turning it on couldn't be simpler. It's one click. There's no lengthy setup, no separate instance to manage, no IT project. You flip the switch and Spanish is live for your team.

The best part? Your learners are in control. Choose English and you'll see Lemonade in English. Choose Spanish and you'll see Lemonade in Spanish. Choose French and you'll see Lemonade in French. Every learner gets the platform in the language that works for them, all inside the same account.

“Our customers use LemonadeLXP to train their people on everything from cross-selling to universal banker role to fraud and digital,” said John Findlay, CEO of LemonadeLXP. “Now every one of those topics can be learned in Spanish. When your employees learn in the language they’re most comfortable with, they learn faster, retain more, and perform better. And because it’s one click to turn on, there’s nothing standing between you and a better-trained team.”

The Spanish release is the latest in a steady stream of updates for LemonadeLXP's financial institution customers. It reflects a simple commitment: keep adding value, keep meeting FIs where they are, and keep helping every employee perform.
