DOCOMO PACIFIC powers COVID-19 Contact Tracing Call Center

Tamuning, Guam (October 21, 2020) – DOCOMO PACIFIC, regional leader in innovation, telecommunications, & entertainment, donates 10 mobile handsets to the University of Guam’s (“UOG”) call center of contact tracers.

As positive cases of COVID-19 continue to rise on the island, many community members wonder if there is more that can be done to control the spread. Early this October, UOG offered its support to the Department of Health and Social Services by setting up a call center for contact tracers, specifically to support the recently launched Guam COVID Alert App. DOCOMO PACIFIC joined this effort by donating telecom services.

The donation of handsets includes unlimited talk and text services to ensure the contact tracers have reliable connections needed to perform their contact tracing tasks.

“Contact tracing is one of the primary ways we will be able to slow the spread of Covid-19 throughout our island community. Thank you to DOCOMO PACIFIC for being a partner in this pilot program led by Public Health – we are truly better together in overcoming this pandemic.”

– Carlos Taitano, Director, Global Learning and Engagement, University of Guam

We encourage you to add your phone to the COVID fight by downloading the free Guam COVID Alert app from the Apple or Google Play store today.
