

101 chairs and barstools by Maarten Baas for Lensvelt

Attention as currency. We share our opinions, like, shout, advise and give each other compliments. See me, hear me, look at me! This was the inspiration for Maarten Baas to shamelessly use the title 'May I Have Your Attention Please?' to first introduce his 101 chair for Lensvelt in Milan in 2017.

The installation, which is also part of Maarten's solo exhibition Hide&Seek, features dozens of whispering horns that come together as a whole. 'May I Have Your Attention Please?' marked the launch of the Maarten Baas 101 chair in Milan and won the Award for Best Concept: though manufactured en masse, due to a clever innovative cutting technique, -just like opinions- each chair is unique. The wide variety of colour and back rests create a dangling joy of critical play towards today's society.

Lensvelt is more than just a furniture producer. Their mission is to provide architects and interior designers with the tools to create innovative interiors. Creativity is always the common denominator and therefor Lensvelt is a perfect fit to produce this family of chairs and barstools by Baas.
