

TRAVIS TYLER

SENIOR VICE PRESIDENT OF DEFENSE & SPECIAL MISSIONS
PRESIDENT AND CEO OF TEXTRON AVIATION DEFENSE

As the president and CEO of Textron Aviation Defense LLC and senior vice president of Defense & Special Missions at Textron Aviation, Travis Tyler is responsible for all aspects of the company's broad Defense and Special Missions portfolio – which encompasses the Beechcraft T-6 Texan II, Textron Scorpion and Beechcraft AT-6 Wolverine as well as the entire array of Special Missions Cessna and Beechcraft aircraft. He oversees aircraft sales, specialized mission equipment, maintenance and aircrew training programs, logistics and maintenance support and aftermarket support programs.

Since joining the company in 2008, Travis has accumulated a strong history of leading profit and loss functions of the business, most recently serving as vice president and general manager of Able Aerospace. Previously, he led Textron Aviation's Sacramento Service Center and completed roles of increasing responsibility in the areas of customer service, technical marketing, operations and engineering.

Travis brings a wide range of skills to his role, including proven capabilities in developing customer relationships, negotiating and leading customer-focused teams. Throughout his professional tenure, he has successfully navigated the intricacies of winning and supporting government contracts and aircraft fleets for military customers.

Travis earned a Bachelor of Science in Aerospace Engineering from the University of Oklahoma and a Master of Science in Organizational Leadership from Stanford University. He was named to the National Business Aviation Association's Top 40 under 40 class of 2023.

Travis and his family of four are excited to return to Wichita.
