

Conor Maynard presents Candlelight concert original session in London

For the first time, singer and songwriter will star in a one night only intimate candlelit concert at Central Hall Westminster in October

London, July 9th, 2024 - Fever's international Candlelight concert series will present for the first time an original live music session with English singer Conor Maynard. The Central Hall Westminster will be transformed with the intimate candlelit ambiance on October 25th to host this special program featuring Conor Maynard's biggest hits such as 'Turn Around' and 'Can't Say No' accompanied by Brio String Quartet. The full setlist will be announced on the day and tickets are now on sale.

Conor Maynard gained fame in 2012 with his debut single "Can't Say No", which quickly became popular and entered the UK Top Ten. Following this success, he released his debut studio album "Contrast", which debuted at number 1 on the UK Album chart. In March 2020, after a decade with a major label and achieving global success, Conor became an independent artist. He has since accumulated over 2 billion streams, completed 2 world tours, released his second studio album, and garnered 20 million followers across social media.

Candlelight Concerts are a series of original music concerts created by Fever aimed at democratizing the access to classical music. This innovative format represents a unique live musical experience through a varied offer of programs to meet all tastes, played by local musicians, in emblematic venues, with the space and performers illuminated by thousands of candles. Candlelight invites a broader audience that might have never considered a classical music concert before to connect with the most iconic pieces of the greatest composers and listen to the top hits of well-known artists in a different way.
