▲ TRU Simulation celebrates National Aviation Day

National Aviation Day is an opportunity to recognize the innovation, passion and people who help move the aviation industry forward. At TRU Simulation, that passion is reflected every day in the employees who design, build and support training solutions that help prepare pilots around the world.

To mark the occasion, TRU employees were asked a simple question: What does aviation mean to you in three words?

Their responses highlight more than a shared appreciation for the industry. They reflect the curiosity, innovation and commitment to continuous learning that drive aviation forward and power TRU's mission to deliver training solutions that help pilots train more effectively and safely.

From words that speak to technology and progress to those that capture connection, inspiration and discovery, we are the voices of the people who are passionate about aviation. We are the people who are in the skies every day.
