Hotel

Located in the Cannaregio district, one of the most romantic and authentic corners of Venice, NH Collection Venezia Grand Hotel Palazzo dei Dogi is a five-star property steeped in charm. Set within the magnificent 17th-century Palazzo Rizzo Patarol, the hotel is home to the city's oldest private botanical garden.

Over the centuries, the building has served various roles – from monastery to the French and Savoy embassy – before being transformed into an elegant hospitality destination. Today, it stands as a true Venetian retreat, just few steps away from traditional artisan shops and major landmarks of the city.

A meticulous restoration has brought new splendor to the palazzo, enhancing its historical beauty while reviving original frescoes, sculptures, and paintings that contribute to an atmosphere rich in timeless charm.

The Secret Garden

Adding further magic to this historic setting is the Secret Garden, a rare botanical oasis of over 2,000 square metres, from which visitors can glimpse the islands of Murano and San Michele, as well as the distant peaks of the Alps.

Created in the 18th century by Lorenzo Patarol – a renowned botanist whose collection now forms part of Venice's Natural History Museum – the garden has been admired by figures such as Emperor Francis I, who visited in 1815. It remains a haven of peace and reflection, where nature flourishes among century-old trees, hidden paths, and ancient structures.

Visitors can discover unique features like the icehouse (once used to store food), a charming footbridge, and a statue of the Virgin Mary, adding to the garden's rich narrative.

The garden is open to hotel guests and, thanks to the collaboration with Wigwam Club – a local organisation dedicated to preserving Venice's secret gardens – it is also accessible to the public.
