ABOUT HOI AN.

From the 2nd to the 10th centuries, Hoi An was the busiest seaport of the Champa kingdom. Persian and Arab documents from the latter part of the period mention Hoi An as a provisions stop. The area was annexed by the Tran Dynasty in the 14th century after a long war between Dai Viet and Champa.

By the 15th century, peace had been restored, allowing normal commerce to resume. Chinese, Japanese, Dutch, Portuguese, Spanish, Indian, Filipino, Indonesian, Thai, French, British and American ships came to Hoi An to purchase high-grade silk fabrics, paper, porcelain, tea, sugar, molasses, areca nuts, pepper, Chinese medicines, elephant tusks, beeswax, mother of pearl, lacquer, sulphur and lead.

The Chinese and Japanese traders sailed south in the spring, driven by winds from the northeast. They would stay in Hoi An until the summer, when southerly winds would blow them home. During their four month sojourn in Hoi An, the merchants rented waterfront houses for use as warehouses and living quarters. Some traders began leaving full-time agents in Hoi An to take care of off season business affairs. This is how foreign colonies got started, although the Japanese ceased coming to Hoi An after 1637, when the Japanese government forbade all contact with the outside world.

In 1999, the old town was declared a World Heritage Site by UNESCO as a well preserved example of a Southeast Asian trading port of the 15th to 19th centuries, with buildings that display a unique blend of local and foreign influences.

OPEN JEEP COUNTRYSIDE TOURS

Balancing riverside luxury and colonial charm with a rush of real adventure, Anantara Hoi An Resort has teamed up with Active Adventure Tours and invites guests to explore Vietnam's more off the beaten track sights with an exhilarating range of open jeep countryside tours.

Edging the Thu Bon River in the historic port town of Hoi An, Anantara Hoi An broadens its cultural appeal with close proximity to some of Vietnam's most iconic heritage sites and natural wonders. Inspiring savvy travellers to venture off the beaten track, the resort's Open Jeep Countryside Tours are completely different to the usual offering, focusing on the excitement of the journey and not just the destination. The freedom of original discovery covers remote terrain and hidden havens, unseen by the masses.

Open jeeps afford a closer personal connection to changing landscapes and local life, enhanced by the option of taking the roof off. Creative itineraries investigate beyond the confines of a guidebook, and whilst encompassing all the key landmarks, each excursion is unique. Passionate local guides are always on the lookout for fresh routes and secret finds, meaning that the map of each tour is constantly evolving, and typically no two trips are the same.

EARLY MORNING MY SON BY JEEP

Setting off at dawn, this trip beats the heat and avoids the crowds. Whisking travellers off the usual route to My Son, this half day tour starts at sunrise, passing through lush rice paddies and the Thu Bon River delta region.

A stop at a rural market introduces the bustling morning rituals of country life. Upon reaching the ancient Champa Kingdom capital of My Son, guests enjoy a continental breakfast and take a silent stroll through the UNESCO World Heritage Site at a time when few others visit.

In this celebrated historic vestige, the story of impressive ruins is brought to life by a well-informed guide. In the background, Champa music plays as a traditional dance performance begins. The return journey is equally insightful, traversing small country lanes and pretty hamlets.

HAI VAN PASS ADVENTURE BY JEEP

This full-day adventure packs in diverse highlights, in a way few travellers are privileged to witness. The first stop is Thap Bang An – home to a 1,000-year-old Cham tower. Zooming up Bo Bo Hill, passengers discover its historical importance during the American war.

After coffee with the locals, the jeep ascends the famous - renowned for its hauntingly beautiful mists and magnificent viewpoints. An equally scenic descent arrives at a pristine stretch of coastline near the village of Lang Co.

After a picnic lunch and a paddle in the sea, the return journey offers a different perspective, delving into traditional fishing village life.

BHO HOONG AND CO TU EXPERIENCE BY JEEP

Deep in the central highlands, this voyage packs in a weeks' worth of discovery. From the golden coast to emerald mountains, the timeless rural scenes of the river delta and a glimpse of the Laos border area, this intriguing trip also visits minority villages. The day begins cruising through quaint villages and hamlets to reach the Co Tu village of Bho Hoong, for a first-hand experience of ethnic tribal culture, a traditional lunch and music performance. Meandering through tea plantations to the Co Tu town of Trung Mung, travellers stop off to visit the former king of the Co Tu people, see traditional wood carvings and enjoy a local brew of tea, coffee or a potent nip of local rice wine. The route back takes in spectacular Non Nuoc beach for a refreshing ending.

SIDECAR EXPLORER

Go for an adventure in a retro soviet-style sidecar and experience a once-in-a-lifetime escapade with photographic opportunities, unique to Central Vietnam.

The journey begins at the doorstep of your accommodation. You're driven out of town, into the picturesque rice paddies to experience everyday countryside living, stopping for a ride on a water buffalo – a truly unique Vietnamese experience which locals are often spotted doing!

Continuing on our journey we make our way through Tra Que organic vegetable gardens, traditional graveyards, markets and the villages of Hoi An. We end our trip by driving along the banks of the Thu Bon River and finish at our starting point or at the beach.
