

Sonos Partners with Škoda to Bring Premium Sound to the All-New Peaq

The collaboration marks the latest evolution of Sonos' in-car listening experience

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — June 23, 2026 — Sonos today announced a partnership with Škoda, serving as the audio partner for the brand's new flagship electric vehicle, Škoda Peaq. As part of the collaboration, Sonos has architected the in-cabin listening experience from the ground up, shaping how music, voice, and entertainment are experienced throughout the vehicle.

"Sonos is built around the idea that sound should move effortlessly through the home. The car is an increasingly natural extension of that — a place where the quality of what people hear matters just as much," said Sonos CEO, Tom Conrad. "As listening flows beyond the front door, this partnership enables us to imagine how the Sonos system can too. We are excited to partner with Škoda to create a truly premium in-car listening experience for the Peaq."

Available as part of the optional Relax Package, the Sonos premium sound experience was purpose-built for the Peaq — custom-tuned to bring the depth and clarity Sonos is known for into the cabin. Every component was engineered specifically for the vehicle, with sound shaped to reflect what the artist intended. The result is deep, controlled bass, a front-focused soundstage that pulls you into the music, and rich, balanced sound across every seat — all tied together by spatial audio that makes the cabin feel like a space designed for listening.
